Ab initio (HF/6-31G* and MP2/6-31G*) and density functional theory (BP/6-31G and B3LYP/6-31G) calculations are performed on the first singly protonated species of a series of porphyrins: porphyrin (TMP), TMP-Zn, TMP-Al, TMP-Ga, TMP-Ge, TMP-As, TMP-Se, and TMP-Sb. B3LYP calculations provide lowest energies for TMP-Zn, TMP-Al, and TMP-Ga. DFT methods overestimate the relative energies of the porphyrin anions. Addition of Zn(2+) and Al(3+) to TMP(-) results in ZnTMP(-) and AlTMP(-) as stable species. These anions are characterised as cyclic dimers of a Zn(2+)TMP(-) and an Al(3+)TMP(-) with an added solvent molecule of the porphyrin ring. Optimised geometries are compared with predicted geometries from crystal structures of the porphyrins and 1,2,3-triazolyl radicals formed by photolysis of the porphyrins. The calculated geometries indicate that the Zn(2+)TMP(-) and Al(3+)TMP(-) species are good models of the cyclic dimers found in the crystal structures. Z 2d92ce491b
