KEYMACRO is an easy-to-use program for keyboard macro recording and playback. A macro allows you to record a sequence of keyboard commands that you want to be automatically executed on your keyboard. That's it! You can execute the macro whenever you want by simply selecting the command. The command data is recorded to a file (text, not binary, can be specified later by clicking the Options... button) On startup, the macro is played back from the specified file. How to record a keyboard macro? 1. Double-click KEYMACRO icon on your desktop. 2. Select "New..." and specify the file name, where your macros will be stored. 3. Select "New" to start recording. After clicking "OK" on a dialog box, you can start typing your keyboard command. How to playback a keyboard macro? 1. Double-click KEYMACRO icon on your desktop. 2. Select "Play..." and select the file name, where the macro will be played. 3. Select "Play" to start playback. 4. When you see the prompt "Playback finished," you're ready to use the macro Golden Conch Golden Conch is the official mascot of the University of New Mexico (UNM). Created in 1968, the character's voice is provided by television news anchor Carmen Bulit. History Golden Conch was first a clay figure, created as a clay mascot. In a 1968 halftime show, he was chosen to represent UNM during the halftime show. In 1974, Golden Conch began wearing a hairpiece. In 1979, he was equipped with a full body suit. For 1982, he began wearing a Native American headdress. Currently, Golden Conch has no skin on his face. He has undergone only two color changes, as of 2002: a white head with blue and orange spikes, and a new head with an orange face, orange with green spikes, and a white nose.
