References Gujarat Category:Gujarati cinemawe will be thankful that you took the time to pull back and figure out how to work this situation out in your own way, for you'll only benefit from doing so. we will be even more thankful that you trust us as the elders to guide you through this. we don't think it's appropriate to ask people to be angry at you, or to be upset with you, and we don't think it's appropriate to act like it's your job to fix your partner's anger, or to decide if their anger is justified or not. we will be thankful that you pulled back and took this personally. we will be thankful that you drew your own conclusions from this, instead of simply passing judgement on someone else. and we will be thankful that you took it upon yourself to actively check in with your partner to talk about this. i'm just thankful that you listened and didn't immediately say "you're a horrible partner", or "you must not be a loving partner" and more importantly that you allowed yourself to get better. Hi Anna, I think you are right on your comment. I think the key here is that your partner is a human being like you. My partner is human, and I have a right to expect him to be human. To do otherwise would be a betrayal of my expectations of him, and would harm our relationship and ourselves. When he does or says something that is hurtful to you, it is not just his hurting feelings. It is also his hurting emotions, his hurting body. If you are going to be a part of a relationship that is supposed to be a positive part of his life, you need to make sure he is human. You need to check in and see if he is, or not. If not, then you have the right to ask questions, 754eb5d184
