A biopic about Budhiya Singh, the youngest marathon runner in the world, whose story has sparked controversy and inspiration around the world. Budhia Singh was born in 1963. The Race For Male Attractiveness, which he won, was the final of his participation in the European Wrestling History. His training began at the age of 6, when his Tatar father, a former wrestler, began to teach him how to laugh and wrestle. In his projects, Singh was inspired by many famous athletes such as Eddie Mannix, Brett Rogers, Tiger Woods and others. His life story, detailed on the DVD, includes Singh's interview with his father, a member of his wrestling team, as well as memories of important events in his life by his brothers and other acquaintances. The film has not been translated into Russian.
