The COMEX long position decreased by $5.87 billion compared to last week to $2.25 billion and the COMEX short position decreased by $2.10 billion to $3.47 billion. Aggressive shorts The volume of retail sales increased to $11.73 billion compared to last week's $11.61 billion. "Overall, a reasonable increase (5.7%) in sales compared to the same week last year", read Wednesday's NFA report. Looking at the average retail trading day, there were 47 contracts traded in the pit compared to 40 last week. The COMEX long position decreased by $5.87 billion compared to last week to $2.25 billion and the COMEX short position decreased by $2.10 billion to $3.47 billion. Aggressive price decline Oil prices continued to decline last week, but to a lesser degree than the average price decline that has occurred since March 21, leading to weekly cash oil price contracts that totaled $35.77 per barrel. "Oil prices dropped by $2.16 per barrel last week, and by $4.30 per barrel over the last three weeks," read Wednesday's NFA report. The NFA Oil Report only includes the NFA Petroleum Futures contract, not all oil futures contracts. Oil price declines The NFA doesn't provide an estimate on what price it expects oil to reach because NFA futures market prices are updated daily, unlike the price of a crude-oil futures contract that only changes every hour. "No agreement was reached. The futures market price for oil continued to remain lower than the cash price", said NFA.
