To register older versions you would have to register a "demo" version first and if you like the software, sign up for the full version. If you are confused with the registration process here are some links that could help you: Here's a list of registration services: microsoft.com/en-us/program-registration/registration-services-windows-products.aspx You could also try Classmate.com (a commercial registration service) as well. Working with the UN, the head of the Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Forestry in Syria is Saad Al-Hariri. He resigned on Wednesday, along with the Minister of Environment, Mohammed Alloush, after a fortnight of protests against electricity cuts and soaring food prices. Also in al-Hasaka, the six month old government of Bassam Yazbek has also been forced out after police forces attacked demonstrators with tear gas and live rounds, killing scores of people.

Disciplinary Arrests In the north, an imam who was fired from his job in a government school was handcuffed and dragged away, during a demonstration that was not officially planned. Three Syrian government forces who were attempting to arrest demonstrators clashed with demonstrators in Deir al-Zor, killing three people, according to Amnesty International. One person was shot in the throat and the other two had their throats slit by a group of soldiers from the Third Division, a paramilitary group that is part of the Syrian Armed Forces. A source who was in the town of Al-Bukamal during the protests on July 1 told DW that the army shot teargas canisters at demonstrators. It was not possible to independently confirm this. On July 3, the Syrian government security forces moved to arrest 25 Syrians in Deir al-Zor who were protesting against electricity cuts. The
