I have the following table which I am trying to convert to entities (a presentation layer). TESTData . . . ID OrganizationName EmployeeName Category ActivityDate Field1 Field2 Field3 Field4 The goal is to create new objects which encapsulate this information. Each object has an organizationID, the employee name, the category, etc. I am able to get the result using SQL, but I do not understand how to create the desired entity classes using the following code (please also note that the code below is not complete): The classes I have so far: Employee public int ID { get; set; } public string OrganizationName { get; set; } public string EmployeeName { get; set; } public Category Category { get; set; } Organization public int ID { get; set; } public string OrganizationName { get; set; } Category public string Category { get; set; } The result I am looking for is something like the following: Object1 Employee1 "Bob Smith" Category1 "Targeted" 2015-01-23 "123.1" "99.9" "56.32" Object2 Employee2 "John Smith" Category2 "General" 2015-01-26 "123.1" "99.9 570a42141b
