Param Include for Confluence Screenshots:The present invention is directed toward a method for injecting well cement compositions which comprise calcium sulfate-calcium carbonate-based hydraulic cements into subterranean formations. Well cement compositions which comprise a hydraulic cement and water are typically formulated with weighting agents such as barium sulfate, sodium carbonate, aluminum hydroxide and/or the like. However, these weighting agents have a tendency to aggregate in the well cement compositions which can lead to problems when the well cement compositions are pumped into the subterranean formation. In addition, these weighting agents are not readily soluble in water or easily removable by dissolution in water. Thus, a need exists for an aqueous well cement composition which is substantially free of weighting agents such as barium sulfate and the like. The present invention provides a method for injecting a well cement composition which comprises a hydraulic cement and water into a subterranean formation which comprises contacting the well cement composition with an aqueous electrolyte solution comprising a major proportion of water and a minor proportion of an electrolyte which dissolves the well cement composition at a pH greater than 7.5 and a concentration of the electrolyte solution of at least 0.05M. The electrolyte is preferably an alkali metal salt such as sodium chloride, potassium chloride or mixtures thereof. The present invention is further directed toward a well cement composition which comprises a hydraulic cement and water.Olympics Playoff Coverage Soccer Browns 101 provides 24/7 obsessive sports coverage of the Cleveland Browns as a part of Sports Media 101.
