Albany, NY -- (SBWIRE) -- 01/13/2019 -- The key drivers driving the global market for economic storage devices include the growing trend of cloud computing. Economic storage devices help in holding the data securely on cloud servers. The need of storing data securely in cloud space is increasing with the rise in real-time applications. Due to the increased demand for cloud computing and subsequent storage space, the economic storage device market is expected to grow at a healthy rate during the forecast period. The global market for economic storage devices is segmented based on device, application, deployment and geography. Based on the device, the market is further segmented into drive spindle and fixed spindle. The fixed spindle segment is expected to grow at a higher CAGR during the forecast period due to its higher availability and dependability. Based on application, the market is segmented into database, network and file storage. The network and file storage segment is expected to grow at the highest CAGR during the forecast period. Based on the deployment, the market is segmented into cloud and on premise. The cloud segment is expected to grow at a higher CAGR during the forecast period due to its ability to provide various types of data storage and complex and use-based security protocols. Geographically, the market for economic storage devices is analyzed for North America, Europe, Asia-Pacific and LAMEA. North America is expected to be the leading market for economic storage devices, owing to its highly developed software industry and government support.
