convenient, easy-to-use recording tool that allows you to log and store the most important details of all your communication sessions: the date and time of the transmission, the exact location of the sender and the receiver, the type of mode used, the mode of the receiver and the power of the signal. You can keep the detailed information about all your sessions in a local database, which can be later used to search for specific transmission details. Furthermore, the WinlogRecords application is a perfect solution for tracking the most important details of a specific transmission session, such as the QSOs, the RFI, the spurious activity and power of the signal. All this information can be easily stored in a database, which you can later use to analyze your activity. With WinlogRecords, all your communication sessions can be recorded, stored and searched, keeping all the information about the location of the sender, the power of the signal, the propagation conditions, the mode, the received power and QSOs. After you begin using the program, it is easy to enter the exact details of the session and you can add as many details as you like, such as the latitude, longitude and the altitude of the transmitter. You can also keep a private log and exclude specific QSOs from it, so you can easily find the details about your QSOs in your database. Each session is recorded in a separate tab in the main window, which makes it convenient to monitor the status of all your sessions. In the separate record, you can enter details for each session and later sort the log entries by date or by most relevant details. You can edit the records of a session later, add new sessions or update the details of the existing ones. Finally, you can export a report of all your sessions to Word, CSV or HTML
