(the free version is limited to 100 free calls per month)It's not known whether the 20,000-person Facebook Live video was sent by the gunman himself. There are two theories Photograph: The Guardian/The Washington Post/Getty Images The murder-suicide that killed a reporter and three others at the Capital Gazette newspaper was live-streamed by a gunman, officials said early Saturday. It remains unclear whether the gunman himself shot reporters Rob Hiaasen and Gerald Fischman and editor and publisher John McNamara before turning the gun on himself. The gunman began streaming on Facebook Live minutes before 6am, the website Mediaite reported. A witness claimed to have heard gunshots for almost 90 minutes, with media outlets reporting that the gunman was shouting "This is my shooting" in between the alleged murder-suicide. The suspect has been identified as 36-year-old Jarrod Ramos of Laurel, Maryland, according to the Associated Press. Just hours before the shooting, Ramos had apparently posted a photo to Facebook, posing with a shotgun and with the caption "fuck yeah". The Wall Street Journal said it had been authenticated as the gunman's video. The paper also noted that the hashtag #fightforthecapgaz on Twitter was used 21 times after the Washington Post's first report of a shooting at the Capital Gazette in Annapolis, Maryland. The hashtag was used a total of 62 times on Friday morning. The police chief in Maryland's Anne Arundel County said one of the injured victims, McNamara, had been airlifted to Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore. A description of how "Jajah Phone Buddy" works: "Jajah Phone Buddy" telephony functionality is implemented using some public telephone numbers registered with "Jajah" phone directory service provider. These telephone numbers will not be charged by "Jajah" to the user but will be charged by the service provider used to place the call. The actual charge will depend upon whether the call is placed from a land line, mobile or broadband connection. The number will appear in the "phone book" of "Jajah Phone Buddy" when a user selects the number from a website with this software installed. We also provide the Jajah phone buddy for access to Jajah conference calls. Please Note:

- The Jajah Phone Buddy does not allow calls from the Windows phone client to be made unless you use the Jajah App.
- We do not support Windows Phone 7.
- Please do not forget to replace Jajah with the word "my" in your "Jajah Phone Buddy" settings and setup.
- Logins to the 'my Jajah' account are usually required for phone call operations.
- If the account to dial is not under your control then request an alternative number from our contact page.
- This software must be installed on your own computer, not on the computers of other users.
- We do not support Jajah or a similar service for use by other users.
- We do not support Jajah phones.
- These free calls are not VoIP calls.
- The free trial calls are charged to the telephone account of the paying Jajah user.
