Regulation of chondrocyte differentiation and endochondral bone development by basic fibroblast growth factor and bone morphogenetic protein. Basic fibroblast growth factor (bFGF) and bone morphogenetic protein (BMP) proteins play an important role in signaling from connective tissue to the cartilage and bone. The study was to explore the role of bFGF and BMP in endochondral bone development in the growth plate. The recombinant adenoviral vector containing dominant negative (dn)-type of bFGF receptor and inhibitor of BMP signaling, respectively, were used to express these proteins in the growth plate. The expression of the growth plate markers and the differentiation 3e33713323
