The need to install our own printing press arose due to the growing demand for textbooks and related materials. The existing printing press ... "does not allow us to provide the entire volume of printed products required for our educational institutions," says Konstantin Kashuba, director of the Altair publishing house. That's what prompted him and his colleagues to launch their own books in series. "We understand that our books are not just a source of knowledge," says Mr. Kashuba. - It's a document against which the work of students, for example, will later be evaluated.
