There is a shortcut for the Ribbon Menu. It does not appear to be a shortcut as it does not appear on the button in the Ribbon menu. The next icon I found is called Right Click. Right clicking the screen opens a new window of the right button. I'm not sure how I would get at the left side of the screen with this tool. The next icon is called Screen Capture. It looks like the screencapture I use to take screenshots. I can find this tool in my Program files and it is in the Screen Shot folder. The screen shot program shows all my screenshots in a folder on my Desktop. You can also save the screenshots to your hard drive or cloud storage. I like to save them on my hard drive to make it easy to find them when I need them. The next icon is a search window. It is like the windows search box. It is very small and is located just to the right of the screen and is easy to find. This is the very last icon on the screen. I do not remember finding this one. It is located in the system tray. Although statin therapy is considered to be effective for the prevention of progression of coronary artery disease (CAD), the optimal treatment dose and duration of treatment are uncertain. Moreover, 2 major concerns with long-term statin therapy are the safety and tolerance of statins. However, recent statin studies with 10-year outcomes have shown the beneficial effect of statin therapy even after the median follow-up of 5 years, and several recent studies have shown the beneficial effects of statin in progression of CAD. To assess the additive lipid-lowering effects of atorvastatin and pravastatin in progression of CAD and clinical events, we conducted a retrospective, observational, single-center study at the Yonsei Cardiovascular Study Group. We enrolled 57 CAD patients who were treated for primary and secondary prevention. Atorvastatin 10-40 mg or pravastatin 10-40 mg were administered. The final analysis was performed in 42 patients with three-vessel CAD and prior statin therapy. Of the 42 patients, 24 were treated with atorvastatin and 18 with pravastatin. The baseline characteristics were similar between the two groups. After a mean follow-up of 6.6 years, the primary end point (cardiac death, myocardial infarction, and repeated revascularization) occurred in only one patient. The final event-free survival rate was 91.7% and 100% in patients treated with atorvastatin and pravastatin, respectively. This study demonstrates the preventive effect of continuous lipid-lowering therapy in progression of CAD as well as the safety and tolerability of statin therapy in routine clinical practice.
