Picture: AAP But when a 'Vietnamese scam' took her out of Australia, she gave it everything she had to get her son back. The 17-year-old boy is living in Saigon, Vietnam, after being taken by his mother from Australia illegally via a Vietnamese visa scam. When her son called her from the Vietnam, she discovered a Vietnamese-Australian woman was scamming her. The Vietnamese woman had been in touch with the teenager for years, but a photo of his Australian passport in her email showed his true identity. The young Vietnamese girl, from Melbourne, received another email from her son telling her he was safe. "My head was swimming," she told The Australian. "I thought I was going to be able to help him, but when I got there I realised I was trapped in an awful situation." The Vietnamese scammer told her she needed to pay a large sum of money to fly to Australia, and told her there was a risk her son would be taken to detention. "She was giving me all these threats and said if I did not pay, he would be sent to detention," the girl said. "She said my son would be taken away from me and I would be deported. "I was left to figure out what was going on." She realised something was wrong when the scammer asked her to send the money before telling her she had been scammed. When she flew to Australia in September to bring her son home, she was put in a taxi by immigration officers who told her her son would be taken to detention. The young man, who cannot be named because he is under 18, was placed in a foster home and she was left with two young children of her own. When she spoke to immigration officials about it, they told her it was her fault, and that she should have just kept quiet. "He was just a kid, he didn't know what was going on," the mother told The Australian. "I didn't know what to do, I was lost. "I tried to get a lawyer to help, but immigration told me it was too late." She then
