What's New In ScreenHunter Pro?

CNET Editors' Rating Your ability to capture anything that appears on your PC monitor or on your webcam is your top priority, so we'd suggest you do everything you can to have a capturing tool that will let you accomplish that task in the fastest way possible. When you're surfing the web, typing an e-mail or even playing a game, do you ever wish that you could capture the action on your PC monitor? Nowadays, with today's computers and devices, you can. We've spent hundreds of hours testing a wide range of software products that let you perform various types of captures, and our experience has proved that one of the best is ScreenHunter Pro. The program can not only record a video or a still image, but also record the video or the still image of your screen as you surf the web, or play games. The program is available in two versions: One is a trial version, the other is a full version. The trial version will let you capture up to five still images and five video clips. The full version is available for a one-time purchase of $39.95 or you can download the free trial and later upgrade it to a full version with the purchase of a license key for $19.95. With ScreenHunter, you don't need to worry about installing third-party software to capture video or a still image of your screen because the program does the job on its own. The interface is very simple and easy to use, and the program will perform the capture function with only a single mouse click. As soon as you run ScreenHunter, a very compact window is displayed, and you can either click it to start capturing a video or a still image, or you can drag the window down from the top. To do that, simply move the mouse pointer to the upper right of the screen and drag the window down with the left button. In addition to still images and videos, the program is also capable of capturing a webcam stream. You can either choose to record the stream from a webcam that is connected to your PC or you can record the action from your webcam. The program supports several types of captures: Webcam captures Captures your own webcam Capture screen area Capture screen area with objects Capture objects on the screen Capture objects on the screen with webcam stream Capture screen area and objects with web cam stream The program can save captured images and videos in the following formats: JPG PNG BMP GIF PDF FLV MPG The program can not only save captured images or videos in the format you choose, but it can also manipulate the captured images and videos, so you can easily do things like resize, crop, draw a line on top of the image or video,
