But to avoid the blowback for his presidency, he took a calculated risk. By Thursday night, the investigation that had begun this week had produced its first arrests. Chen Guangcheng, the blind activist who left the U.S. in fear of persecution, had been captured in Beijing. The authorities had pledged to free him. A marriage had been arranged for the two. But the authorities later sent him to another jail. All of it left Obama with no good options, but he could not swallow his guilt on Thursday night. A year ago, Obama called Chen a "troubled blind man" who was thrown in jail in China because his activism led to his house being raided. He said the Chinese government was "putting him to shame." That quote quickly spread on social media, capturing attention in the last few months of the election. The Republican candidate, Donald J. Trump, may have had a few moments to bask in the glow, but that was not the case in Chicago on Thursday. The reaction in the United States included people like Deborah Daniels, a veteran Chicagoan who has never supported Trump. "I think he went a little overboard. It's like, you're a candidate, you got a job to do and you are going to do it," she said as she prepared dinner Thursday night. "That's the only way we ever get a good person in office, you have to stand up and you have to speak up." Daniels did not support Obama, and she was not happy with his remarks. "If you're a candidate, you better mind what you say and you do it to your people," she said. "People on the street are going to be like, 'Oh, yeah, that makes sense.'" And then there was Jill Sun Fu, a supporter of Hillary Clinton who was out this evening at a campaign rally for her and her husband, Dennis Sun, who also was outside. She was irate that the United States and the Chinese government had gotten in a spat, then cheered on by the crowd when Obama made his remarks. I am trying to make my Date field auto-populate when a user types into the date field, but I am having no luck. How can I do this? Currently, if I enter a date, the field does not populate. class Article(models.Model): title = models.CharField(max_length=200) published_date = models.DateField() def __str__(self): return self.title I would like the date to be auto-populated like this: A: You should probably use a DateField in your Article model, and in your admin class have a formfield_class option: class ArticleAdmin(admin.ModelAdmin): formfield_class = DateField If you do this, you should also, of course, put the DateField in the right model in the admin, since you don't want it in all Admin classes. The formfield_class option allows you to define your own form field class, and is used as a basis for formfield_overrides. So, if the field's in a particular ModelAdmin subclass isn't defined by DateField, you can implement your own formfield to do what you want with it. You should create a __init__ method for your custom formfield that does something like this: def __init__(self, *args, kwargs): super(DateField, self).__init__(*args, kw
