(lets say 10% probability for soft1, 20% probability for soft2 and 70% probability for soft3) A: Assuming that the event that we're talking about is "a computer has soft1, soft2, or soft3 installed" and is independent of the others, then the probability that computer i has soft1, soft2, or soft3 is the chance that one of those three happen times the chance that each of them happen times the chance that the computer has the others. That is $$ P(A_i) = \frac{\binom{3}{1} * 0.1 * 0
