Rare.The embodiments herein relate generally to portable lighting devices. Portable lighting devices for artificial lighting have been used in areas such as construction, agriculture, and military environments. Typically, such devices have used incandescent or fluorescent light bulbs. However, such lighting devices have a number of drawbacks. For instance, such lighting devices can be expensive to purchase and operate. Also, such devices can be hazardous to a user because of high heat generated and the glass container may crack. Additionally, portable lighting devices that have used LEDs can generate a significant amount of heat and fail or may be damaged when the device is used in colder conditions.[Summary of medical treatments and opinions in patients with multiple sclerosis in the city of São Paulo, Brazil, 2000]. This study investigated the treatment received and doctors' opinions concerning multiple sclerosis (MS) treatment in São Paulo, Brazil, from 2000 to 2004. Of the 293 individuals with MS interviewed, 52.5% received no treatment, 66% were treated with disease-modifying agents (DMA), and 10% were treated with both. High percentages of patients who received treatment were seen in the Ambulatory Care Service (66.5%) and the Neurology Service (58.3%). There was no difference in the use of DMA among patients treated in different specialties. Treatment with DMA was initiated with the second or third year of disease, with a higher frequency in the period 2000-2004. The pattern of use of DMA differed from the previous decade, with the use of interferon beta-1b increasing. A high percentage of patients indicated not receiving any treatment (26.6%), or being left to determine treatment themselves (31.1%). As these patients required more support and patient input for self-management, provision of services to 595f342e71
