The rivalry featured in many pre-season friendly matches, such as a match between the two at Victoria Park in 1896. Despite being mainly played in friendly matches, it was a highly competitive contest. Each club encouraged its supporters to attend other matches on the days of the match in order to make a strong showing for the home team. During the 1890s the matches were among the most popular in the Victorian Football League. Between 1914 and 1921, the two clubs' leagues were combined into the Victorian Football League, and due to the War-time shortages, the rivalry was not played until 1928, when the two clubs returned to the VFL. The two clubs played out all their matches as curtain-raisers to the main games during the years of the combined state championships in the wartime leagues. The match between Collingwood and Carlton was broadcast live by radio on ABC Radio, beginning in 1929. During the war, the teams played in the Allies, then in the Australians, before joining the National competition. In the 40's there were a few matches between the two, with Collingwood winning 10, Carlton seven, Collingwood winning four and Carlton three. In the 50's Collingwood won five, with Carlton winning three, Collingwood won one and Carlton won four. The two clubs had split in the 50's, but renewed their rivalry in the early 60's, with Carlton winning three and Collingwood four. Match Details Colling b7e8fdf5c8

The multifunctional protein enhancer of zeste homolog 2 (EZH2) promotes angiogenesis, tumor cell proliferation, and metastasis in various cancers. However, little is known about the role of EZH2 in gastric cancer (GC). In this study, we found that the expression of EZH2 was significantly increased in GC cells and tissues. Further, high EZH2 expression was positively correlated with tumor progression and poor survival in GC patients. EZH2 knockdown was able to inhibit GC cell proliferation, migration, and invasion in vitro and tumor growth in vivo. In addition, EZH2 could promote cell autophagy and autophagy-related signaling pathway in GC cells. Moreover, our results showed that miR-15b-3p was markedly decreased in GC tissues and cells. Importantly, miR-15b-3p was negatively correlated with EZH2 expression in GC cells. The above results indicated that miR-15b-3p could target EZH2 to inhibit cell autophagy in GC cells. In addition, the expression of discoidin domain receptor 1 (DDR1), a
