Most cloud-based solutions nowadays are extremely reliable and almost bulletproof-safe, but if you were to follow to old and wise saying, then you can really "never be too careful," especially when it comes to protecting your privacy. Cryptomator is a useful and efficient piece of software that is designed to bring a bit extra security to your cloud-stored data by providing a quick way to encrypt them. In a few words, you can use Cryptomator to create vaults in your Dropbox, Google Drive or any other cloud-based storage system you desire and that is not all, as it also works locally. In principle, working with this utility is easy enough even for the most inexperienced users out there, mainly thanks to a simplified workflow but also to a distractions-free user interface. Just create a new vault by selecting its path, assign a passphrase or password and that is about it: no need for accounts, secure keys, cipher configuration, cloud access grants or other complicated processes. Keep your cloud-stored data protected with the help of this useful app This is a good time to point out that you files are thoroughly encrypted by Cryptomator with the aid of classic AES algorithm and that you key, passwords and passphrases are protected against bruteforcing attempts. What is more, you should not fret about the sync process since the app encrypts each file individually, meaning that only the files with modifications will be uploaded to the cloud. Least but not least, you should know that Cryptomator can also be used on other popular operating systems out there such as OS X and Linux and even comes with a counterpart app for iOS, with plans for Android also. No need for complicated processes, cloud access grants, security keys or long and tedious registration procedures: just create a new vault with Cryptomator and go ahead and start protecting your cloud-stored data. If you are a newbie to cloud encryption, chances are that you have heard about "cloud storage" and you are quite eager to embrace this new and convenient way of keeping all your important data protected and away from prying eyes. Almost every web or Internet user is familiar with cloud services, such as Google Drive or Microsoft's SkyDrive, and some even use these providers as their main storage location, while others are shifting all their data to the cloud to take advantage of the convenient and cheap storage options.
