The flight of the locust, Pyrrhocoris apterus (Fabricius), was observed on Ping-Si Island and Ha-Do Island, the islands from which P. apterus is currently considered to have immigrated from Korea. We examined the flight dynamics of P. apterus and its relationship with air currents on both islands. The track records of 20 and 26 individuals captured on the islands in the spring and autumn periods of 2002 were examined. Flight behaviour was classified into seven categories: (1) flying above the ground or resting on the ground, (2) walking below the vegetation, (3) walking, (4) flying above the ground or walking below the vegetation, (5) walking, (6) flying below the vegetation, and (7) stationary on the ground. Flight activity was observed in 95.6% of the time on Ping-Si Island and 85.5% of the time on Ha-Do Island. Flight behaviour was categorized into three groups: (1) walking below the vegetation, (2) flying below the vegetation, and (3) stationary on the ground

Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method of fabricating a light emitting diode, and a light emitting diode. More particularly, the invention relates to a method of fabricating a light emitting diode capable of improving luminous efficacy, and a light emitting diode so fabricated. 2. Description of the Related Art A light emitting diode (LED) is a semiconductor device capable of converting an electric signal into an emission of light. The LED has a low power consumption as compared with a filament-based light emitting element, and has advantages of a long lifespan, semi-permanent characteristics, and small size. In addition, in response to an increasing demand for a light emitting device with a light emitting diode in a backlight of a large-scale display device, the light emitting diode has been applied to a display field. As the display field is shifted from a transmission type to a reflection type, the demand for the light emitting diode with the high efficiency and an increased size has recently been increased. As a result, technologies for a high efficiency and an increased size have been developed. A light emitting diode includes a light emitting region and a junction region. In the light emitting region, which is an active layer, electrons and holes are recombined to produce excitons, and the excitons are transitioned to a ground state to produce light. Accordingly, the light emitting diode has an advantage of excellent monochromaticity. In the junction region, the electrons and the holes may be recombined by reducing a band gap of the active layer, or a barrier formed by a Schottky junction or an ohmic contact of a metal. FIGS. 1A to 1F are cross sectional views illustrating a conventional method of fabricating a light emitting diode. Referring to FIG. 1A, a buffer layer 110 is formed on a semiconductor substrate 100, for example, a sapphire substrate, by vaporizing and reacting a GaAs raw material. A growth layer 120 is formed on the buffer layer 110 to have a predetermined thickness by a molecular beam epitaxy (MBE) method or a metal organic chemical vapor deposition (MOCVD) method. THE LEGEND OF MIGHTY MIND September 05, 2010 03:56 Wristwatch technology creates an ideal timepiece for the wearer who intends to leave the wheel-power behind. It must also be robust and easy to use, and incorporate escapement technology that assists in aligning the hands of the clock. A clever design brings together a mechanical timepiece with the most modern technology, the first watch with a micro-processor "brain". Labyrinth shield watch case with stainless steel construction. A self-contained environment generates the necessary power. It requires neither winding nor re-setting. The tiny sensor detects the movement of the wearer's arm, and the watch is ready to start. Wristwatch is the only mechanical wristwatch that comprises of a computer, using a micro-processor. Paired with a battery, it carries on the watch tradition of keeping accurate time for the wearer. A clever arrangement of the watch wheels and each scale enables the accurate display of the time through analogue dial or digital display. A collection of watches with various complication, each with its own style of display, dial and hands. Worn side by side, each watch depicts different time information with the same precision. Watch is perfect for users who do not want to be bothered by winding the watch, re-setting the watch or disturbing the balance. Wear your watch and your wristwatch becomes one. "Wristwatch" is a brand that promotes wearable watches. Choose a watch that suits your lifestyle, exercise, and design preference. Your watch will never stop, but that doesn't mean it's not always ready to be worn on your wrist. For as long as you desire to wear a watch on your wrist, your watch is always ready to carry you time.Q: Is there a big difference between the final-flag and the archive-flag? Problem is after list loads, I need to update list again. How could I refresh list after ajax call? Thanks! A: You can try using delegated events to add an event for your links: $('#div').on('delegate', 'a', function() { // Handler called when.on() is called on a descendant element // (in this case, on an a element) // this is a jQuery object representing the set of matched elements. $(this).data("mySortKey", 1); // If you wish to refresh data $('#div').listview('refresh'); }); and then you can sort your list by using $('#div').listview('ref
