* Adobe Photoshop Pro. Officially called Adobe Photoshop CS4, this is the professional version of Photoshop, originally written by Adobe. It has the same tools as Photoshop Elements but is designed to give you more control when working with images. * Photoshop Express. Officially called Adobe Photoshop CS4 Express, this is the lower-priced version of Photoshop. It's the same as Photoshop Express in CS5, and it's even more powerful than Photoshop Elements. It is specifically targeted toward those who want powerful photo-editing software with a small footprint on their hard drives, such as web design or graphic designers. * Photoshop Elements. This is the photo-editing program designed for the basic and novice user. It's part of the Adobe Photoshop Creative Suite and includes a basic set of tools for retouching and modifying images. It can be downloaded from the Adobe website for free. * Photoshop Lightroom. This is the name of the program that allows you to organize, edit, and manage your images. It includes the same tools as Photoshop Elements and Photoshop, but they are even more robust and can handle big files very well. It is available for free and as part of the Adobe Photoshop Creative Suite. * Photoshop Creative Suite. This is a family of programs that includes all of the previously mentioned programs in one bundle. It can be purchased for a low price. The advantage is that you get all these great programs at a discount. You can also download the individual products and pay for only those that you need. * Photoshop Actions. Actions are programs created to automate certain tasks in Photoshop. They come with preset templates that make working with images easier. * PrintShop. This is the brand name for the print management program designed by Adobe to manage your print jobs. It has the ability to scan all of your images, size them to the right size for printing, and monitor the progress of your print job. A one-time cost.

It is a very useful tool, especially when you are just starting out. But as your skills and needs grow you may find that you are spending more time in Photoshop than you would like, or you start to get frustrated by the lack of features. So, it's time to upgrade your skills and your workspace, and start using Photoshop professionally. But how? 5 Things to Consider Before You Convert Your Hobby To A Full Time Craft 1. Conversion is Difficult Just like the quote says, conversion is not easy. Adobe Elements has a very simple, user-friendly interface, but there are some things you have to change to get the professional-level experience you need. You won't see the menus and contextual menus you are used to in Photoshop, and you won't see all the typical features that you use on a daily basis. But you'll find out what it feels like to use Photoshop like a pro. 2. You'll Want to Learn the Differences There are lots of differences between Photoshop and Elements. But if you are a beginner, you won't notice the differences and just enjoy the experience. Once you become more experienced, you will want to know what is the difference between various tools and what each one is really for. For example, the Gradient tool in Photoshop is for adjusting the gradient of a selection, but in Elements it is used for applying gradients to an image. You will also notice lots of small differences in functionality. For example, if you find that your curves dialog in Elements doesn't show the histogram (which you know is there in Photoshop), you'll want to know where to find it and how to turn it on. 3. Switching is Not an Option Sometimes you won't be ready to switch to Photoshop just yet. And some people may never want to switch. If you are a hobbyist, Element is a perfect environment for you. Just use it for basic tasks and save your professional PSD projects for Photoshop. 4. A Little Time Before Completing the Conversion Adobe Elements has lots of limitations when you compare it to Photoshop. Once you convert an image to Photoshop, you will see all these little differences right away. But if you convert an

North Carolina's Amendment One Goes Against State's History As the battle for marriage equality rages on in North Carolina, the Human Rights Campaign's National Capital Region office in Washington, D.C., is asking the U.S. Attorney General to get involved. On Thursday, the National Capital Region office released a formal complaint against the State of North Carolina and the election officials who work for the state. "For the second time in one week, North Carolina's anti-marriage amendment has been voted on," the statement said. "If North Carolina is seen to have turned its back on LGBT families, there will be little appetite in other states to maintain their own marriage bans. We urge the Attorney General to intervene to stop this amendment." North Carolina's Amendment One, which is on the November ballot, seeks to take marriage rights away from same-sex couples. Last week, a North Carolina state court struck down the amendment on technical grounds. "The ruling strikes down Amendment One on the basis that it is 'an attempt to amend the state constitution's definition of marriage, which has been amended previously,' said Katie Hamm, a lawyer with Lambda Legal. 'It appears the Court understands that the amendment is directed at stripping LGBT people of the rights to marry and parent and expressly redefines marriage as between one man and one woman,' Hamm said. 'This is yet another example of how Amendment One appears to be a thinly veiled attempt to discriminate against LGBT people.'" According to The Charlotte Observer, marriage is a "significant sticking point" in North Carolina. Despite more than a year and a half of discussion between supporters and opponents of the amendment, ultimately, "the question of whether to define marriage as a union of a man and woman is at the center of the fight." In fact, North Carolina's Gov. Pat McCrory said that marriage is "really, really important." "We want to make sure that we preserve the marriage as it's been known for thousands of years," said McCrory, who has denied that his campaign is financed by the Church of God in Christ. "We need to preserve the historical definition of marriage because there's a whole sub-culture that's built on that historical status quo." The statement from the

What's New In?

It seems like a nightmare that has been decades in the making, and now we have a nation where Democrats hold the presidency, U.S. House of Representatives, U.S. Senate, seven of the state governorships, and a majority of the state legislative chambers. It may have been the "War on Women" or something else, but in 2016, 54 percent of the people in the United States voted for Hillary Clinton and 44 percent voted for Donald Trump. Hillary won the popular vote by almost 3 million votes. In those 54 percent of the voters, something we don't hear much about anymore is the fact that there were only three states where voters who were motivated by the gender issue voted for Trump. In some ways, Trump won the gender wars and effectively won the state elections by demoralizing women who were opposed to him. So, what are the 2020 plans? Well, it's the Democrats' party, and the Democrats have their own plan. Trump, we were told, was a racist, a sexist, and a xenophobe. In the first 100 days of the Trump presidency, we also saw a flood of almost every type of Pro-Life legislation that Roe v. Wade has been protecting since January of 1973. For example, Louisiana has a law that for the first time since 1973, the state has the privilege of ignoring Roe v. Wade, and if a pre-born baby is born alive, the state can take him or her to the hospital so the mother can be healed. It's called the "Louisiana baby crisis law," and it was passed unanimously this week by the Louisiana legislature, who were also unified in supporting the bill. It's been one of the strongest pushes for "personhood" legislation since Roe v. Wade was passed. Maine has a similar law passed in May of 2019 called the "Born Alive Abortion Survivors Protection Act." "We believe in the sacredness of every human life," said Mike Thibodeau, president of the Maine Catholic Conference. "We are calling on the president of the United States to assist in the strengthening of Maine's law." And Georgia is about to become the 18th state to pass a personhood bill. In other words, the Democrats have become radicalized. They believe in the sanctity of
