This checkbox has an onclick method that allows the row to be deleted. I am using the following method to fire the delete `$('.delete').live('click', function(){ var n = jQuery('#' + $(this).attr('id')).closest("tr").remove(); });` However, if I select multiple rows, I get two alert boxes on clicking on the checkbox. One for the event, and one for the row removal. I need to only remove one row. Any ideas? A: Use this `$(this).closest("tr").remove();` `closest()` looks for the closest tr element above the current one. Working Demo Loading...
