Meredith Meredith was one of the first series to focus on the emotional impact of parenthood: "There was, at the beginning, a lot of focus on Meredith and all the young parents struggling to figure it out. If they could get past it, why couldn't we?" said Ewing. Added the casting department: "It was more about the idea of a family and how difficult it can be for people of all races." Notably, this was the first series set in LA. The city was notoriously segregated at the time, and the cast says it was "an important part of her story". Original showrunner Kim Moses claimed she had never heard the word "homophobe" before she came to the US to direct and do the show. Her daughter informed her it was a thing, she added. And maybe that's because it feels like it's always been a thing. But that "thing" has an elephant in its backyard: This episode focused on a small, tense incident around one of the many pre-Black Lives Matter protests that broke out in North Carolina. The scene captured the odd tension that Black Lives Matter had created in Los Angeles at the time. Here's how four US Black Lives Matter activists described the scene. So there you go. 10 of the biggest issues in the black community in 2013. We'd love to know your thoughts in the comments below. data=_models 1cdb36666d

Statue of Michael Heffernan The statue of Michael Heffernan (1873–1958) by a fellow League of Ireland footballer William O'Callaghan is located in Oriel Park, Bray, County Wicklow, Ireland. Oriel Park (Dromahane), the home of Bray Wanderers Football Club since 1895, is situated next to the sea at the foot of Bray Head. Bray is part of the Dublin Region and the surrounding scenic countryside is part of the Dublin Mountains World Heritage site. Haven Hill was purchased as farmland in 1879 by the wealthy Meehan family. Between 1886 and 1899, the Meehan family built a castle and pavilion at the north end of the estate, giving the park the name "Haven Hill". In 1895, the Meehan family built a football ground in Oriel Park, naming it after their home "Oriel Park". In 1914, D. D. Sheehan, football manager and owner of D.D. Sheehan & Sons Ltd, built the home they called "Fernbrook" on the site of the old mansion house, as part of the company's war effort. On 11 July 1911, Thomas J. O'Donnell (1869–1958) was declared bankrupt and his estate was sold at auction in Kilkenny, with a reserve of £14,000. Heffernan started his League of Ireland career with Monaghan United and the next season he moved to Dublin side Bohemians. In 1904, he signed for Shamrock Rovers. After a couple of seasons with Shamrock Rovers, he moved to Drogheda United where he spent two seasons before moving to

Dundalk. Heffernan spent six seasons with Dundalk before retiring in 1912. He retired as the League's all-time top scorer with 73 goals in 83
