[Effects of ginseng on the expression of insulin-like growth factor 1 in an experimental model of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease in rats]. To investigate the effect of ginseng on the expression of insulin-like growth factor 1 (IGF1) in bronchoalveolar lavage fluid (BALF) in a rat model of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD). A total of 40 male SD rats were randomized into five groups, with 8 rats in each group: a control group, an ethanol group, a saline group, a ginseng group and a dexamethasone group. COPD was induced by multiple intratracheal instillations of lipopolysaccharide (LPS). Ginseng was given by gastrogavage at a dose of 50 mg/kg body weight, three times daily. Rats were sacrificed under anesthesia at 2, 6, 12 and 24 h after last administration, the right lungs were taken out, then the bronchus was transected and the bronchoalveolar lavage fluid (BALF) was obtained. At the same time, the left lungs were taken out, and the left lung tissue was fixed with 10% formaldehyde. The sections of the lung tissues were stained with hematoxylin-eosin (HE) method. The mean optical density (M) of IGF1 in BALF was measured by enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay (ELISA), and the M value of IGF1 in BALF was analyzed. The expression of IGF1 in the lung tissues was observed under immunofluorescence. The M values of IGF1 in the BALF at 12 h after exposure to LPS were significantly increased in the LPS group, ethanol group and saline group, and the highest M value was observed in the LPS group. Compared with the LPS group, the M value of IGF1 in the ginseng group was significantly decreased. After 6 h of intragastric administration of ginseng, the expression of IGF1 in the lung tissues was markedly increased, with a higher value in the ginseng group than in the ethanol group and the saline group. The expression of IGF1 in the lung tissues was increased by 1.3 times in the ginseng group and 0.8 times in the ethanol group, and the expression of IGF1 in the lung tissues was much higher in the ginseng group than in the ethanol group and the saline group.

I've been away from here for about a year now, and it's been a big void. I'm hoping the posting of my thoughts (and some selfies) will help me in this quest to feel better about myself. I am hoping that by listening to and reading about others' successes and struggles, I'll be inspired to fight harder for me.
