A case study: b Kim, S J., Kim, C M., Choi, S K., Yoon, S J., and Kim, M I.. of the behavior of the water, hydrated ions, and interfacial transfer of hydroxide across the. Innate immune system activation is essential for the induction of long-lasting adaptive immune responses. However, it is unclear whether this response is also required for the generation of antigen-specific effector T cells. Here we show that mice lacking  $\text{CD4}^{+}\text{CD25}^{+}$  T cells and  $\text{CD4}^{+}\text{CD25}^{-}$  T cells in the gut or the pancreatic islets develop antigen-specific effector  $\text{CD8}^{+}$  T cells despite significant reduction in both local and systemic innate immune responses. The generation of effector cells in the absence of these regulatory T cells is dependent on IL-2 and the IL-2 receptor  $\beta$  chain. When the same animals are adoptively transferred with antigen-loaded antigen-presenting cells, the number of antigen-specific  $\text{CD8}^{+}$  T cells is increased. These data demonstrate that gut-derived regulatory T cells are not a prerequisite for the induction of effector T cells and that regulatory  $\text{CD4}^{+}\text{CD25}^{+}$  T cells do not play a role in antigen-specific effector responses in vitro or in vivo. . e.\*]{}}, if  $F$  is analytic at  $\gamma=1$  and has a first order pole at  $\gamma=-1$  then the action is unbounded from below for any mass and the conformal invariance is lost.  $\bullet : F(\gamma)=(1-\gamma^2)F(1)$  and  $F'(\gamma)=2\gamma F(1)$ . In all these cases the equations of motion imply the behavior of the model, see [Kiefer]. The spectrum of gravitons remains bounded from below.
