Midfielder celebrates his first season in the Russian Premier League when he takes on his former team CSKA in the UEFA Champions League round of 32 second leg. CSKA Moscow's Andrey Arshavin will replace the injured Fyodor Smolov in the squad as he looks to make history with a victory over Arsenal at Arsenal's Emirates Stadium in the UEFA Champions League round of 32 second leg. Netherlands international Arshavin, who scored the decisive goal in the memorable UEFA Champions League final between Atletico Madrid and Chelsea, is a welcome addition to CSKA's lineup, however, he has left his former team on the pitch and his fierce rival for the title and who is there to help him at the Emirates Stadium - Andrei Arshavin. CSKA Moscow's main rival for domestic honors last season was the trio of Spartak Moscow, Zorya Luhansk and Rubin Kazan. All teams are directly involved in this season's UEFA Europa League and yet only two teams from the top three can qualify for the group stages of the tournament. Arshavin is eager to follow up on his hat-trick performance in the Champions League final and make sure CSKA is able to make a rightful step on the ladder of Russian football. CSKA's last eight matches of the 2011/12 season have all been victory. This includes their 3-0 win over Krasnodar, 1-0 win over Zenit St. Petersburg, 3-1 win over Rubin, 2-1 win over Lokomotiv Moscow, 2-0 win over Volga and finally, 2-1 win over Krasnodar, to earn the right to play against the Gunners. Arshavin is currently recovering from a thigh injury he suffered while training for the Olympic Games in London and is not expected to be in action for another three weeks. Players to watch out for are Czarek Szymanski for Arsenal and Denis Glushakov for CSKA, because they are the two key players in the game. Who has the bigger chance for the win? Report will be updated live at UEFA.com immediately after the match. Go to "Squads" to see who's playing, and to check the teams. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to toilet seats, and more particularly to toilet seats which can be removed for cleaning and replacement. 2. Description of the Prior Art As long as there have been toilets, there have been problems with the seat. Typically, people have tried to improvise the seat in the toilet, for example by wrapping a piece of paper around the toilet seat, so that they can wipe themselves and change the toilet paper. This is only a temporary solution, since the paper must be soaked in water, and then changed once it gets wet. In addition, while toilets are usually positioned for easy access, it is often difficult for people who use the toilets to fully enjoy or be comfortable while sitting on the toilet seat. For example, if a person using a standard toilet seat leans forward, they may inadvertently hit their head or knee on the bowl or flush valve of the toilet. In many cases, the toilet seat will not provide sufficient support to avoid injury. In order to alleviate this problem, people have tried to rest toilet seats on bricks, plumbing pipes or a metal bar that is bolted to the wall. This often causes problems, such as loosening of the toilet seat and a breaking of the toilet seat. There are also toilets with a seat that is detachably mounted to the toilet bowl so that the seat can be removed for cleaning and replacement. Such toilets, however, are usually complicated to install, expensive, and can fail to secure the toilet seat in the desired position. Accordingly, there is a need for a toilet seat that can be mounted to a toilet bowl, and removed for cleaning and replacement. The present invention is directed to such a toilet seat.

Q: Implementing Advanced Persistent Threat (APT) Detection Possible

Duplicate: How can I implement an APT detection system? As of today, APT detection systems are based on signature detection. Is that a viable approach? Is it possible to detect APT by analyzing the behaviors of network traffic? Are there other ways to detect APT? A: Basically, you would want to monitor patterns of behavior that look like what an APT would be executing, such as many attempts to find a running service (and password) from a known location of compromised machines on the network. You wouldn't be concerned with traffic itself, but with the data it carries and the behavior that occurs with that traffic, and whether it is behaving
