[Click on a thumbnail below for a larger image.] 1. Layer 1: The background layer The background layer allows you to make any changes to your image without disturbing the other layers. At the top-left of the Layers palette (displayed to the right) is the Background layer. To change the background layer, you can either use the Background layer's layer mask (a selection that looks like a grayscale image) or change the color of the background by choosing Edit>Fill. 2. Layer 2: The hair layer Layer 2 contains most of the hair and clothing editing. This is where you create the appearance of each effect. To create the hair and clothing, you can use a range of editing tools. The selection tool (white box) is the most commonly used tool for selection. The layer mask button (white circle) can be used to hide the clothing from the selection. The Direct Selection tool (black box) makes it possible for you to select on the hair, clothing, background, or any combination of layers by tracing a line around the object. If it ends on another object, it selects that object as well. The brush tools let you paint on each of the layers. Use the Soft Round brush to soften or strengthen the edges of the shape, the Hard Round brush to cut out the shape, the Soft Round-Up brush to make things look more curly, and the Hard Round-Up brush to make things look more straight. You can also use the Liquify tools to adjust the shape, change the softness of the edges, and make things more or less distinct. The transform tools can make things look more stretched, rotated, and more. To create a perfect circular shape, the pathfinder tool (white circle) can be used. When you hold down the shift key, the pathfinder tool will create a perfect circle. The shortcut for the pathfinder tool is C. You can use the dropper tool (white X) to fill in shapes. The dropper tool fills an entire area with a color of your choice. With a few mouse clicks, you can use the the Horizontal and Vertical Clone tools (white/black arrows) to duplicate. 3. Layer 3: The skin layer To create skin, you use the following tools. The Brush tool is used to brush off the unwanted hair and clothing. It has the Round-up brush
