Recipe for Adventure Press (Sept. 1, 2014). 432 pages. $19.95. The Book FOR WHATEVER REASON, Lorenz's writing is deliberate and thoughtful. Her willingness to leave her astrological reading behind marks her as a great teacher and guide. Her advice is intended to empower women to learn from her mistakes and success. With a cri-de-coeur-like charm, Lorenz writes from the heart. She's an eloquent, luminous and thoughtful teacher, and on her journey she doesn't spare much of herself, and so much of her life. In the book she shares her "abuse, addictions, abandonment, miscarriage, infertility, pain, and the death of a friend to suicide." She has the pen of Joan Didion and Eileen Myles. She tells about her childhood, her father, time in Hollywood, and her tumultuous marriages. Lorenz's writing is interspersed with her recipes for change. Lorenz works with students in a private practice, and she maintains her own website. She's the founder of the Women's Center at the Crisis Intervention and Developmental Clinic at Einstein Medical Center. She began working with crisis intervention clients as a nurse practitioner, and as the women's wellness director for the clinic, she graduated from the U.S. Preventive Medicine Institute as a master herbalist. These and other courses in public health prepared her to work with adults and children. *About two years 595f342e71
