Data masking is very easy to use. Just enter the data that you want to mask in the masking screen. An example of the above mentioned scenario would be: If a company wanted to mask its Legal Form and the country name (we will use the general name for this example, and not the ING Group of companies) Each field that was included in the application would be checked for any data masking that can be applied. This will only check for the following fields: Legal form: Company name Country name Administrative country code Administrative region Business type Data Masking: In the masking screen you can choose between different masking functions. For example: Hide/Show: The data can be shown, but it can be masked. Re-fill: A value is entered for each masking function. Un-mask: The data is unmasked, and the masking has been removed. Re-mask: The data is masked once again. Hide/Show: The data is hidden, but shown. Below are a few more examples of how to mask your data. Hide/Show: Format: Hide [value]: [value] Hide All: Format: Hide: Un-Hide: Hide All: Re-form: Hide/Show: Re-fill: Hide All: Hide/Show: Re-fill: Hide All: Re-Form: The 1st line, 2nd line, 3rd line, etc. are the fields that will be checked for masking. The 1st line contains the "Hide/Show" function The 2nd line contains the "Hide All" function The 3rd line contains the "Hide All" function The 4th line contains the "Re-Form" function The 5th line contains the "Re-Fill" function The 6th line contains the "Re-Fill" function The 7th line contains the "Hide All" function The 8th line contains the "Re-Show" function The 9th line contains the "Hide All" function The 10th line contains the "Re-Fill" function The 11th line contains the "Re-Form" function The 12th line contains the "Re-Show" function The b7e8fdf5c8
