How to install autodata 3.40 in windows xpbfdcmQ: A.deb package for a python script fails to install in Ubuntu Here is the script: As you can see it is a small and simple tool that can restore devices in a fast mode but I am having some issues with how it is packaged (Ubuntu 18.04 in this case). My source code is correctly built and the deb package is correctly built. I made it using the instructions in A hard requirement is that these packages must be installed through apt. I tried to install it using the command $ sudo dpkg -i rad*.deb but it fails with an error message. Output The following packages have unmet dependencies: rad: Depends: python3-numpy (>= 1.12.0) but it is not installable E: Unable to correct problems, you have held broken packages. And nothing is installed. The python3-numpy is installed. What is wrong? P.S. I tried to use the deb build option as described in but it seems to fail in several different ways, probably due to any of the doc515b9f4
