A novel electrochemical sensor based on AgPd@Pt nanoparticles (NPs) as the signal probe, poly(4-styrenesulfonate) (PSS) for the modifying matrix, and chitosan for the capping layer was developed for ultrasensitive detection of hydrogen peroxide (H2O2). With a synergistic combination of the properties of AgPd@Pt NPs, PSS, and chitosan, the electrochemical sensor could detect as low as 0.1 µM of H2O2 with a linear working range of 1 µM-7.5 mM and a detection limit of 0.4 µM under optimal experimental conditions. In addition, this electrochemical sensor exhibits excellent stability, repeatability, and selectivity, and can be successfully applied to detect H2O2 in spiked human serum.The Antibody V3 Region: A Convenient Marker for the Detection of HIV-1 Subtypes with Distinct Immunopathological Responses? In order to elucidate the impact of the antibody V3 region on the generation of immune responses in HIV-1 infection, HIV-1 subtype-specific antibodies of the V3 region of the third hypervariable loop of the env glycoprotein were analyzed in 161 HIV-1-infected individuals. We found that differential immunopathology associated with distinct
